EDITOR TELLS OF TRIAL OF AARON BURR

"Aaron Burr had one strange disadvantage, people just couldn't trust him," Frank F. Biene, associate editor of the Baltimore Sun, told a group of students and faculty members in Gladfelter Hall at Gettysburg College Friday night.

Speaking on the trial of Burr, Biene sketched the characters of several of the principals. Burr, he said, "had a way with the ladies. There are a great many gossipy tales that we can't quite check."

Biene noted that Jefferson had described Burr as "like a crooked gun. When it went off you could not tell which way it would shoot." The Baltimore editor outlined the events in Burr's political career through his term as vice president and detailed some of the subsequent incidents of Burr's adventures west of the Alleghenies which led to his trial for treason.

Extravagant Man
"Burr was an extravagant man," Biene said. Although he ran out of money, he had a way of ingratiating himself with wealthy and influential persons with his "great charm of manner."

Burr was acquitted of the treason charge and "outlived everybody," Biene said. "He lived to be about 85. He always tried to get to see important people. I don't know how he lived. He seemed always to be able to bet a meal."

Others whose lives touched Burr's had some similar characteristics. Biene said that Gen. Wilkinson, then governor of the Louisiana Territory, was "like Burr, always out of money. He was a double crosser." Biene said that Wilkinson served as an undercover officer for Spain for which he received about $2,000 a year.

DEFINITION OF MOTEL CITED BY COUNTY COURT

The Adams County court today set up a definition of "What is a motel?" in handing down an opinion in the action in ejectment brought by Alan B. and Hazel H. Kynor against Hans G. and Carolyn H. Enggren, all of Gettysburg R. 4.

The case evolves about the efforts of the Kynors, who purchased the "Willows" along the Harrisburg Rd., to break the lease of the Enggrens who rent the motel units adjoining the Kynor home.

The Enggrens had originally leased the motel unit from Glenn Weishaar and others, and when the Kynors purchased the "Willows" the lease was assigned to them.

Kynor entered an action in ejectment claiming the Enggrens violated the lease, under which they were authorized to operate the motel "for motel purposes," by renting to semi-permanent residents. The court held that "the basic concept of a motel is that it furnishes a type of accommodation for the traveling public having some, but not all of the attributes of a hotel and some but not all of the attributes of a tourist lodging house."

Purpose Of Motel

From that the court noted that hotels and tourist lodging houses "frequently, and particularly during the off-season, will accept guests for extended periods of time and may even accept permanent guests. Doing so does not destroy the basic character of the hotel or the tourist lodging house." So the court held the same holds true for motels, particularly (Continued On Page 2)

COURT ORDERS NEW REPORT IN EQUITY ACTION

The account filed by Walter J. Hamme Jr., New Oxford R. D., in the settlement of the partnership between him and his uncle, Hugh K. Hamme, Hanover R. D., was stricken from the record today by an opinion of the Adams County Court, and the New Oxford R. D. farmer was directed to file a new and complete account within 30 days.

The equity action brought by the elder Mr. Hamme against his nephew has been before the court for about two years. It started with Hugh Hamme asking the court to force his nephew to make an accounting of the operation of a farm which the elder Hamme owned and the younger Hamme farmed. The elder Hamme claimed the operation a partnership. The younger said they operated under a tenant-owner agreement.

Question Partnership
After various pleadings and hearings, the matter finally reached the point where the question of whether the operation was a partnership was heard by the court. The court held it was, and directed an accounting. After further proceedings an "account" was filed, by Walter Hamme, but by an accountant.

Attorneys for Hugh Hamme claimed that the lump sum statement filed was "not an account" and asked the court to "strike off the account" and jail Walter Hamme for contempt of court.

In handing down its opinion today the court ignored the "contempt" request, but ruled that "the account as filed is clearly insufficient and clearly fails to comply with the order of November 29, 1958. It is to be noted that neither the defendant nor anyone else takes any real responsibility for the accuracy of the account. The defendant does not swear that it is a true and correct account and the accountant merely swears that it is correct to the best of his information and belief. We have no doubt that the latter statement is true but the only information which the accountant could have must have come from the defendant and it was the responsibility of the defendant to file the account."

The court then outlined what must be in the account, adding that is "must show detailed receipts and expenditures. We recognize the burden imposed upon the defendant by being compelled to file a complete account as he states in his belief, but it is unavoidable."

YOUTH SEIZED WITH BOMB AT CASTRO RALLY

NEW YORK (AP) — Police seized a young man carrying a homemade bomb Friday night as he tried to climb a barrier only 200 feet from where Fidel Castro was addressing a huge rally in Central Park.

They quoted the young man as saying later that he intended to touch off the bomb "for excitement."

"It was just for kicks, I didn't intend to hurt people," he said. The police bomb squad estimated the bomb had an effective radius of 300 feet.

The Cuban Prime Minister was addressing a cheering crowd of 35,000 from a band shell in the park. The shell was set off from the dark surrounding woods by dozens of police floodlights, and the heaviest police guard in New York City history surrounded Castro.

Wall Of Police
A wall of police separated him from the crowd in front, and behind the shell police had set up barriers to keep the area clear.

It was here, unknown to Castro and the crowd, that a blond, crew-cut young man wearing a pale blue windbreaker and cotton wash pants tried to climb over a barrier into the enclosed space. Immediately he was seized by a patrolman and a detective.

In a hip pocket they found a bulky metal tube, sealed at both ends. Police later reported it was a section cut from a vacuum cleaner handle, which had been filled with a mixture of sulphur and zinc, and sealed at one end with plaster.

DOCTOR JOHNSON'S PRAYERS
One of the most inspiring collections of prayers are those by Dr. Samuel Johnson. About a hundred of them were collected and published by Harper & Brothers in 1945-7, with an introduction by Elton Trueblood, who edited the small volume. Dr. Johnson was one of the great stalwarts of all English history, but to learn the depth of character that was his, a reading of his prayers is essential. I have read them over and over again. The one that is unforgettable is the one he prayed at the bedside of his mother's servant, Kitty Chambers, who had buried his mother, his father, and his brother.

Requesting privacy, he knelt before the bed of the dying woman. "I then kissed her," he said, and expressed confidence in a later meeting. She told him that "to part was the greatest pain she had ever felt, and that she hoped to meet again in a better place." The complete prayer is one of the most beautiful I have ever read.

What a sight it must have been — the greatest literary figure of his time humbly kneeling beside the death-bed of his mother's maid, expressing his faith in as simple a manner as that of a child. As the editor of this small volume said, "The worship of God broke down all distinctions of rank, no matter how important they might seem on other ground. These prayers of Doctor Johnson illustrated so simply the honesty and integrity of the great man that he was.

Men and women are greatest when at prayer in privacy. Then it is that we learn the measure of the soul, from which radiate kindness, faith, courage, patience, and humility. God is always around.

Just Folks

A BABY
You're just a tiny little mite,
An innocent and helpless wight,
So many things you cannot do,
You cannot even tie your shoe,
You cannot dress yourself, or get
Along out of your bassinet;
You cannot sit, you cannot stand,
You haven't even found your hand
And yet, somehow, you tiny tot,
You boss your dear old dad a lot.

Your food must all be brought to you,
Nor can you tell them when you're through.
You cannot ask for this and that,
Nor play the game of pit-a-pat;
The neighbors come and stand afar
And say how helpless babies are;
There's nothing they can do at all,
They are so frail and weak and small!
And yet, although they know it not,
You boss your dear old dad a lot.

SECURITY IS BIG ISSUE IN STATE PRISONS

NEW YORK (AP)—Security is a full-time problem in state penitentiaries across the nation. So recent prison outbreaks in Montana and Massachusetts haven't caused too much of a furor elsewhere.

Most wardens are loath to admit laxities exist. They insist they take full safety precautions. A few admit tightening up their routines because of the outbreaks.

At Deer Lodge, Mont., where a rebellion last week resulted in three deaths, a cell-by-cell shake-down is being carried out. The search is being made by National Guardsmen still on duty at the penitentiary. Said Warden Floyd E. Powell: "We haven't found too much contraband."

A new maximum security section is now being built at Walpole State Prison in Massachusetts, where rioting occurred March 7. Wednesday's Massachusetts riot took place at Concord State Reformatory and was quelled in about four hours.

"We're naturally more alert for possible riots at a time like this," said the Alabama deputy prisons commissioner, Frank Lee. But he added that all that has been done there is to alert guard chiefs individually at Kilby Prison in Montgomery.

Special guard alerts also were reported at the Ohio State Penitentiary. But Warden Ralph W. Alvis said the effort to tighten security within the walls is a continuing battle.

Utah State Prison has been undergoing a general security tightening since a riot there two years ago. The recent murder of an inmate increased the vigilance. A crackdown is under way against parodies flowing into the prison, prostitutes sneaking into the honor camp, and trustees visiting near by taverns.

Missouri Corrections Director James D. Carter and Warden E. V. Nash have kept closer touch with inmate informers since the recent prison outbreaks. Special security precautions were set up there after a 1954 riot.

Increased vigilance has been ordered in Florida prisons by the acting prisons director, Robert Gramling, said no specific new security steps have been undertaken.

A riot at the Arizona State Prison last Dec. 4 led to increased precautions such as more frequent searches of cells and inmates. But Warden Frank Eymann added: "My security has always been tight."

Morse Opposing Luce Nomination
WASHINGTON (AP)—The nomination of Clare Boothe Luce as ambassador to Brazil is scheduled to go to the Senate next Monday. The Senate Foreign Relations committee recommended approval of the nomination Thursday. The vote was 16-1.

Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore), who cast the opposition vote, said he will continue his fight against the nomination on the Senate floor.

Morse opposes Mrs. Luce because of remarks she made about Franklin D. Roosevelt in the 1944 presidential campaign. He also claims she intervened in Italian elections while she was ambassador to Rome.

The new leader of the denomination's 873,000 members in 19 states and the District of Columbia has taught at Union Theological Seminary in Richmond since 1925.

Let's Look At The Record

SCIENCE AT GENEVA
Red Imperialism Dead-Ends All Talks
But West Should Continue Conference

By JIM DAN HILL, Ph.D.
President, Wisconsin State College, Superior

THE GENEVA CONFERENCE for control of nuclear tests and arms limitations reassembled from a long recess last week.

This was generally overlooked in the news. Berlin headlines, the events in Tibet, British apprehensions, German politics, combined to overshadow Geneva.

Besides, few persons expect anything more than continued deadlocks to come from these deliberations. Hence the Geneva side show is hardly newsworthy. Actually, no harm has been done at Geneva and some good may come from it.

BOTH SIDES AGREE upon sundry abstractions, but upon no specifics.

This is better than nothing even though Russian agreements upon the generalities are obviously to keep in line with sacred, Marxian peace dialectics and for propaganda purposes.

There often comes a day when a propagandist gets caught on the hook at the end of his propaganda line, and this could eventually happen to the Communists on the subject of nuclear controls and arms limitations.

THE AREAS of agreement and nature of disagreements are as follows:

(a) Limitation of armaments is a splendid idea and important to the welfare of the world; no dispute!

(b) All cosmic space should be dedicated to peaceful purposes, but the Communists in Geneva refuse to attend the committee meetings for working out the details.

(c) Suspension of nuclear explosive tests until more is known of atomic fall out. There is enough agreement on this that both sides have voluntarily suspended.

(d) Inspection is essential to arms controls, they all agree, but on details of any workable plan the Communists quit talking.

(e) All agree armies, navies and air forces should be smaller for betterment of the world. On details there is no agreement.

(f) Both Communist scientists and those of the West admit they are monitoring one another's tests by remote means. It could be better done through international cooperation. Russia refuses to accept details of any plan, offers no practical one of her own.

SINCE THE GENEVA conference is at the science level, rather than that of diplomacy, it was the original hope that conversations on techniques and scientific principles would triumph over ideological propaganda.

This has been the biggest disappointment of all.

While western representatives have sought to arrive at workable details within scientific frames of reference, the Soviet leaders of the Iron Curtain delegations have kept political considerations and propaganda generalities foremost.

THE RESUMED SESSION is opening with American proposals that if Russians cannot agree to a plan for international monitoring of all atomic explosions, it then be agreed that all will desist from blast lower than approximately thirty miles.

These could not contaminate the atmosphere, it is believed.

American and British delegations also argue that atomic bursts

SOME WAVES OF RADIO ABLE TO KILL MONKEYS

WASHINGTON (AP)—Government scientists have discovered that some radio waves under certain conditions can be fatal to monkeys.

This "remarkable phenomenon," as he called it, was reported by Dr. Pearce Bailey, director of the National Institute of Neurological Diseases and Blindness, in testimony before the House Appropriations Committee.

He said he was not sure of the significance and implications but they could be far-reaching.

"We feel certain that radio and radar is not dangerous," Bailey said. "We have had mysterious airplane accidents, on the other hand, it was always assumed that with the ordinary frequencies these things could not happen, but it appears here that if you use a certain frequency and have the head in a certain critical position, it can happen."

Bailey's testimony was given some time ago behind closed doors but has just been released. The transcript did not say what frequency was used and Bailey could not be reached today.

In his testimony, Bailey related that the discovery developed from experiments as to the effect of electromagnetic waves on a monkey's brain activity.

A monkey fastened in a cage was the subject. A radio antenna was aimed at the monkey's head but no part of the experimental apparatus touched the animal.

In a matter of about five minutes, Bailey said, the monkey unexpectedly and suddenly died. About 20 other monkeys were similarly tested but the exposure was halted in the cases of about half of them before they died.

Most of the survivors recovered completely, although they originally showed signs of brain damage.

The waves that killed the monkey, Bailey said, emanated from a radio antenna pointing toward the monkey's head and in line with his brain stem, the central and vital part of the brain. The antenna was not even near his scalp.

Warriors Finish Second In Triangular Meet Won By Steel-High; Hanover Third

Steel-High, showing good balance throughout all events, won the triangular track meet with Gettysburg and Hanover here Friday afternoon. The winners rolled up 67 points, the Warriors placed second with 57½ while Hanover trailed with 33½.

Coach George Forney's outfit picked up four first places with two going to Tom Crist who made a speedy recovery from a leg injury suffered earlier in the week. Crist ran the 100 yard dash in 10 seconds flat and also took the 220 in 23.5 seconds.

The only other double winner of the meet was Ted Kehr. Hanover, who took the 120 high hurdles and the 180 low hurdles. Kehr also placed second in the high jump.

Jim Witherow and George Hayberger accounted for the other first places for Gettysburg. Witherow took the pole vault with a jump of 9.3 while Hayberger won the broad jump with a leap of 19.74.

Steel-High swept to victories in eight of the 15 events.

Gary Smith, Hanover, gave the Nighthawks their first place by winning the shot-put.

Next Friday the Warriors entertain Waynesboro here.

Agent Suggests Control Of Spittlebugs, Care Of Trees, Blocking Termites

By FRANK S. ZETTLE
Adams County Farm Agent

Size, quality, and yield of strawberries can be greatly improved by controlling spittlebugs and other insects that attack the plants early in the season. The yield of berries may be increased as much as 30 per cent when an insecticide is properly applied.

The tiny, orange-colored nymphs of the spittlebug start appearing around the crown of the plant about the time the plants are starting to bloom. A very close examination is necessary to detect them when they first appear. A few days later, small particles of foamy-like spittle-shows on the stems and leaves. As the nymphs grow in size, they become greenish-yellow in color and the spittle mass, which surrounds them, increases in size. They usually complete their development in June.

Adult spittlebugs are mottled brown, wedge-shaped hoppers, which are slightly larger than a grain of wheat. They jump like a frog and are often called "frog hoppers."

Good Control Possible

Proper time to apply an insecticide is just after the young hatch and before much spittle appears on the plant. Generally, good control is obtained by applying the treatment as first normal blossoms appear.

For small plantings, mix 2 tablespoons of either 46 per cent chlordane or 2 E heptachlor emulsion in 1 gallon of water. Spray the plants at the time mentioned above, using at least 1 gallon of spray to each 25 to 30 feet of row.

STILL MOST EFFECTIVE

☆ ECONOMICAL ☆ LONG LASTING

Combine economy—sure control—long-lasting power, and you can easily see why dieldrin is the one insecticide thousands of growers rely on for dependable control of plum curculio and other "cat-facing" insects.

Dieldrin is easy to use. Apply it as a spray during pre-bloom or post-bloom periods. For most effective use, check with local authorities for application schedules and recommended dosage of dieldrin in your area.

Dieldrin is long lasting, too. Its killing action lasts many days after application... puts an end to "cat-facing" insects no matter how they contact it. Dieldrin will pay for itself with better quality, more marketable fruit.

This season, don't let plum curculio and other "cat-facing" insects lower the quality and value of your fruit yields. Stop 'em with dieldrin. Dieldrin is available under well-known brand names from your insecticide dealer. See him today.

On The House

By ANDREW C. LANG
The Associated Press

You can insure your home against almost everything that threatens it except the one thing that causes more damage than fire, flood or storm—the fifth column of moisture created within the house just by living in it.

The most immediately visible effect of this moisture is the blistering, cracking and peeling of paint on the exterior of the house. In fact, scientists blame 90 per cent of exterior paint failures on water from indoors.

The long-range effects are more serious. When an interior moisture problem is neglected for a considerable period of time, it eventually will cause plaster to crack and joints, studs and siding to swell, warp and rot. It also will make mortar crumble from between bricks, nails rust and concrete crack.

Water Producers

Where does this moisture come from? Studies at Purdue University show that a family of four can generate as much as 6½ gallons of moisture in the form of water vapor merely by living through the routine of going in a modern home.

Breathing and perspiring release 1½ gallons in 24 hours. Doing the family laundry can add another gallon—and drying it indoors on a clothesline or unvented dryer can contribute 3¼ more gallons. A shower adds half a pint of vapor to the air each time it's used. Cooking three meals a day contributes five pints more, with another pint coming from washing dishes.

Proper Paints

How do we prevent the water vapor from entering the walls and doing damage? By interposing a barrier, called a vapor barrier, between the moisture and the materials that it affects. One type of barrier consists of a sheeting of some kind across the inner surface of the exterior walls when the house is being built. This sheeting can be asphalt-impregnated and surface-coated glossy sheathing paper, aluminum foil, wall linoleum, glossy surface-coated cloth and certain plastic sheetings. The other type of barrier consists of the proper kind of paint applied to the walls of the rooms themselves. In a new home, this has the advantage of being applied after all the other crafts have finished their work. A second advantage is that a paint barrier is completed homes that have been built without a vapor barrier, it is the only feasible method of destruction. It usually takes a colony of termites a number of years to cause extensive damage to a building. Since termites nest in the soil and the workers do not come out in the open, termites are seldom noticed except when they swarm in the spring. Most any household type spray will kill those termites it contacts, but other winged termites may continue to emerge for a week or more. The colony from which the winged termites come is strong and active and should be checked. Basically, the control procedure of such a colony is to apply a chemical in such a manner as to establish a poisoned barrier between the termite colony and the wood. Further information on the control of termites can be obtained from your extension office.

14 Pile Into A Small Foreign Car

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP)—Traffic officer Thomas L. Needham spotted four pairs of feet dangling from the trunk of a small foreign car Thursday.

careful count. He found four Cub Scouts in the trunk, nine more in the car, plus their den mother, Mrs. Carl Bunnell, the driver. A total of 14.

"I didn't have the heart to issue a citation," said the understanding Needham. He called the station, which sent a squad car around to carry some of the surplus home.

RELIGION TO BE POINTED UP

WASHINGTON (AP) — The importance of religion in American life will be demonstrated to the Soviet people at a U.S. Fair in Moscow this summer.

Sen. Thomas J. Dodd (D-Conn.) said in a statement he has been given this assurance by George V. Allen, director of the U.S. Information Agency. Dodd had written to Allen about plans for the U.S. exhibition in the Soviet capital.

Dodd said not a single display of a religious nature could be found in the American exhibit at the Brussels Fair last year, and urged that this mistake, as he put it, not be repeated in the Soviet Union.

He made public a letter from Allen saying that "since religion is woven into the very fabric of American life, the American National Exhibition in Moscow this summer will attempt to convey our religious heritage in this content."

4-YEAR-OLD IS FIRE HEROINE

FAYETTEVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Four-year-old Barbara Strong, her hair in flames, carried her 6-month-old brother to safety and led another brother outside when fire destroyed their four-room home Thursday.

A third brother, Randy, 2, was trapped inside and burned to death.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Strong, Negro tenant farmers, were across a field when they saw the fire. Their only daughter had rescued the baby, Gary Lee, and Ray, 3, by the time they reached the burning house.

The father smothered the fire in Barbara's hair. She was hospitalized with burns on the hands, arms and head.
